Sounds of the 40s with Fiona

FIONA Harrison and Bartey the Singing Lamppost are returning to Eastbourne this summer.

Fiona will be performing her show We'll Meet Again at the Royal Hippodrome Theatre on Sunday (April 14), May 5, July 20, August 17 and September 14.

The scene is set in 1943, the curtain opens at Stanbridge Railway Station in Bedfordshire. Lance Corporal Wendy Harrison arrives, awaiting a train carrying motorcycle spares, only to find out from Sergeant Spence of the Home Guard that the rail is blocked due to debris further up the line.

To pass the time Wendy begins to practise, as she is to sing in a show that evening.

When she is on her own, Wendy becomes aware of the old lamppost which appears to come to life and begins to speak to her.

Performed in full ATS authentic uniform, Fiona Harrison takes her audience down 'memory lane' with the music from the 1940s.

All the favourite songs from the period are included from Gracie Fields to Vera Lynn and The Andrews Sisters.

Audiences are encouraged to clap and sing along with the music.

To book tickets call 412000.
